THE STORY SO FAR

It all comes down to this, the ninth and final round of the 2022 FIA Formula 3 season is here and with seven drivers still in contention. The Championship is set for its fiercest fight for the title yet. Last time out in Zandvoort had it all, with textbook victories, emotional maiden podiums and Zane Maloney launching a surprise charge late on.

Victor Martins bounced back from a frustrating trip to Spa-Francorchamps to top the opening Free Practice session in Zandvoort. Laying down a 1:25.688 around the banked Dutch circuit put him over four tenths clear of MP Motorsport's Caio Collet and Alexander Smolyar.

It was all about Maloney in Qualifying as the Trident driver became the first repeat pole sitter of the season, while Martins' title fight continued as he claimed a spot alongside the rookie on the Feature Race front row. Yet again it was a mixed bag of results for the rest of our Championship protagonists. Roman Stanek, Jak Crawford and Isack Hadjar secured top five slots, while PREMA Racing duo Oliver Bearman and Arthur Leclerc found themselves falling victim to a last-minute Red Flag, denying them the chance to move up from P14 and P20 respectively.

Starting fourth on the reverse grid for the Sprint Race, Collet proved why strong starts are vital around Zandvoort as the Brazilian dived into the lead and pulled away to finish four seconds ahead in his second win of the 2022 season. Cheers and tears of joy flooded parc ferme when Juan Manuel Correa brought home his first podium following his recovery from his 2019 accident, whilst Zak O'Sullivan returned to the rostrum with third for Carlin. Hadjar, Martins, Crawford and Stanek all managed to bring home points, as Bearman and Leclerc had to settle for finishing outside the top 10.

Maloney got his title challenge well and truly started, with the Bajan rookie celebrating back-to-back Feature Race victories. Despite losing out to Martins off the line and after the first of three Safety Car restarts, he swiftly paid him back by snatching the lead on Lap 12 and held off the Alpine junior to claim the 25 points on offer. Franco Colapinto capitalised on mistakes around him to finish third, ahead of Stanek, Hadjar and Crawford. Leclerc's fightback only resulted in P12, while a drive-through penalty for failing to maintain the proper gap behind the Safety Car demoted Bearman out of the points to the back of the order.

THE CHALLENGERS

Seven drivers are mathematically still in with a shot at being crowned Champion, with 36 points between them. After a return to form in Zandvoort, Victor Martins leads the way on 126, five points clear of compatriot Isack Hadjar. No matter where the Championship leader finishes on Saturday, the fight will go down to the finish line in the Feature Race.

Three top 4 finishes in the past two weekends have helped Roman Stanek leapfrog Oliver Bearman for third on 109, while two Feature Race victories in a row have moved Zane Maloney up to fifth and demoted PREMA's Arthur Leclerc and Jak Crawford down to sixth and seventh respectively.

In the Teams' Championship, it's advantage PREMA Racing. If the Italian team can score 14 points more than nearest rivals Trident in the Sprint Race, points for pole position included, they'll take the title for the third time in FIA F3 history.

Meanwhile, Hunter Yeany returns to Formula 3 with Campos Racing for the final round, replacing Sebastian Montoya. The American driver was forced to sit out the previous three rounds, after he sustained a broken wrist in the Spielberg Sprint Race.

Alessandro Famularo will replace David Schumacher for the final round at Monza, taking over the red, white and blue #15 Charouz Racing System car.

Carlin's Brad Benavides carries a three-place grid drop into this weekend after causing a collision with William Alatalo during last Sunday's Feature Race.

COMPOUND ALLOCATION

FROM THE GRID

Caio COLLET
MP Motorsport

"I've been to Monza twice, and it was where I got my first win in Eurocup in 2020. I love the track, I love the place, I mean what's not to like about Monza! It's a track that is mainly on the driver, you have just a few corners, so you need to be on point with everything that you do. Also, you run with really low aero grip so it's tough with the braking and at both Lesmo and Ascari. It's not easy to put a lap together, especially in Qualifying with everyone searching for a slipstream and a tow. It's easy to get in a place where you're not well positioned, but to race there, I think it's one of the best races on the calendar.

"Qualifying is not an easy session. You need to be on point with your engineer and place yourself really well on track because everyone will stop in Sector 3 to get a tow. I don't think it will be any different this year, especially for the guys in front fighting for the Championship. It is always tough for them because they have everything to lose and some guys in my position have nothing to lose in the last round. Hopefully we can place ourselves right and see. It's a tough, tough session, it depends on how the driver reacts and what he wants to do.

"It's one of the easiest tracks to overtake on, especially with DRS. Even in junior categories where you don't have DRS, you can see a lot of overtakes in Monza because of the huge straights and chicanes afterwards. It's a track where if you qualify in the top eight or seven, you still have a chance to win the race – the opposite of Budapest. It opens the opportunities up a little bit and if Qualifying didn't go well, you can still do a really good race.

"Tyre degradation isn't really a concern. There are just a few corners, nice braking zones obviously but not a lot of lateral use of the tyre. You keep the tyres alive for basically the whole race, so you can really push. It's what makes it really nice in the race because you see through all the laps, the guys are pushing and fighting for it.

"Being on the podium in the Feature Race would be a really nice way to close the season. Obviously, I'm not just looking at the race, I think if we can get to a nice place in the Championship, I think a top five is still possible. Hopefully a top five and to finish on the podium will be a dream."

TYRE TALK

Mario ISOLA
Pirelli Motorsport Director

"After a very close and exciting Formula 3 season, it will be a special moment to see the champion crowned at Monza: our home circuit, close to the Pirelli headquarters in Milan. Whoever comes out on top and wins the title will also receive 300,000 Euros from Pirelli to help them graduate to Formula 2 next season, as part of our long-standing commitment to promoting talented young drivers. The P Zero Red soft compound is nominated this weekend, as in previous years at Monza, although drivers will also have a set of the medium compound carried over from Zandvoort for use in free practice; the versatility of this compound will be useful when it comes to establishing a set-up."

A remarkable seven drivers are currently in contention for the title, three of which are rookies.

Zane Maloney became the first repeat polesitter of the season when he qualified P1 in Zandvoort. The Bajan driver scored his maiden pole position in Round 2 in Imola.

Victor Martins is only 27.5 points shy of the all-time record for career points in Formula 3, an accolade currently held by Frederik Vesti.

28

Trident's Maloney scored a hat trick in the Zandvoort Feature Race, picking up the points for pole position, the race victory and the fastest lap.

3

Martins, Isack Hadjar, and Arthur Leclerc all have three victories in Formula 3, a win for any of them in Monza would see them equal the record (4) currently held by Vesti, Jack Doohan and Dennis Hauger.

The lap record at the Autodromo Nazionale Monza is 1:38.834, set by Christian Lundgaard with ART Grand Prix in 2019.
